

AWAA INDIA TRIP – 2017 UPDATE

Dear families,

We wanted to pass along an update from our trip to India in January as well as some photos we thought you'd enjoy. We had a wonderful and productive trip and are thankful for our relationships in-country, as we all work towards the same goal of placing vulnerable children in loving families.

We visited several different orphanages around India and got to cuddle many children that we are in the process of placing, as well as others currently waiting for which we plan to advocate. Please keep your eyes on our waiting child blog and Facebook posts, we are asking the Lord to bring forward families for these precious ones and would covet your prayers.

We enjoyed favorable meetings with both CARA and US Embassy staff. We were able to give several months' supply of MANA (Ready-to-use therapeutic food) to two orphanages in need. Thank you so much to those families that partnered with us in providing the MANA, we hope to continue this fund in the future.

We always leave India with hearts that are full, but also a bit broken over all we have seen. We love the country and people of India and continue to be so thankful for all that is being accomplished through the program, and for the families that are on this journey with us.

We appreciate all of your prayers!

Elise Lowe and Lisa Adams-Reese
